Attachment A: Items to be seized

Any and all documents,¹ information and other items evidencing violations of Title 17, United States Code, Section 506(a), and Title 18, United States Code, Sections 371 and 2319(a), including but not limited to the following:

1. Computer files protected by copyright, including but not limited to software, game and movie titles.
2. Documents or computer log files relating to copyright infringement, including but not limited to transfer logs.
3. Documents, information or computer files containing communications between individuals relating to copyright infringement, including but not limited to chat logs and emails.
4. Programs or software used by those engaging in copyright infringement, including but not limited to software that allows remote access and control of computer systems.
5. Documents, information or records, in whatever form, of user names and passwords to access the Elite Torrents ("ET") site and secure communication services.
6. Computer hardware, meaning any and all computer equipment. Included within the definition of computer hardware is any electronic device capable of data processing (such as central processing units, laptop or notebook computers, personal digital assistants, and wireless communication devices); peripheral input/output devices (such as keyboards, printers, scanners, plotters, monitors, and drives intended for removable media); related communications devices (such as modems, cables and connections); storage media, defined below; and security devices, also defined below.
7. Computer software, meaning any and all data, information, instructions, programs, or program codes, stored in the form of electronic, magnetic, optical, or other media, which is capable of being interpreted by a computer or its related components. Computer software may also include data, data fragments, or control characters integral to the operation of computer software, such as operating systems software, applications software, utility programs, compilers,

¹"Document" means the originals and any copies thereof (whether identical or different from the originals because of notes made on such copies or otherwise) of writings or images of every kind and description, and in any form; and any prior draft versions of such originals, whether inscribed by hand or mechanical, electronic, microfilm, photographic or other means, as well as video or phonic (such as electronic or tape recordings) or physical reproductions of oral statements, conversations, or events, and including, but not limited to, correspondence, memoranda, meeting minutes, notes, reports, plans, analytical data, diagrams, logs, teletype messages, compilations, studies and tallies, and any computer programs, computer media, computer flow charts, block diagrams, assembled computer programs and other computer service documentation which show computer program descriptions, computer logs, and historical data, and computer record layouts, including descriptions of coded data and handwritten instructions.
